Partnership will bring efficiency, configurability, visibility and control to every layer of capital programs.

ALPHARETTA, Ga., Dec. 3, 2018 /PRNewswire-PRWeb/ -- Kahua, the creator of the world's premier collaborative network for real estate and construction project management, and Gafcon, one of the nation's premier construction services firm, today announced a new strategic partnership. The partnership will leverage Gafcon's decades of specialized experience in program and project management consulting. Together, Kahua and Gafcon will offer innovative solutions, bringing efficiency, configurability, visibility and control to every layer of capital programs.

"Transformation in our industry requires a combination of technology, business intelligence and consulting expertise," said Brian Moore, President of Kahua. "Gafcon, is an ideal partner for Kahua. Their consulting expertise will provide exciting new solutions for our customers in The Kahua Network."

"As a trusted advisor to many public and private owners, one of the most frequently asked questions is 'how does the contractor's software align with the owner's software?' With Kahua's project network options, that question is now answered," said Tiffany LaBruno, Directory of Professional Services at Gafcon.
